Professional Summary

A passionate Development Communication graduate from the University of the Philippines Los Baños with a strong drive to harness storytelling, media, and grassroots communication for meaningful change. My journey as a student-leader, radio co-anchor, multimedia producer, and advocacy campaigner has been deeply rooted in empowering communities through inclusive communication strategies. From co-leading a university-wide scholarship program and organizing national webinars on AI ethics, to developing knowledge materials and multimedia content for real stakeholders, I thrive in initiatives that blend creativity with purpose. I am eager to apply my expertise in public relations, project management, and community engagement to support initiatives in biodiversity conservation and environmental advocacy, and believe in communication that uplifts voices, fuels development, and transforms lives.
